Accessible College Transition Course (ACT)

ACT, offered by NOARC through Cambrian College, is a credit bearing course. This program is open to students in Greater Sudbury (over 16 years of age) who are planning to attend any college or university in the coming year and who have a learning exceptionality (learning disability, ADHD, ASD, etc.) or mental health challenge.

It is also open to early year Cambrian College students with a disability.

Costs and benefits of ACT

- There is no cost. This course is free to eligible students.
- Completion of the course earns three GenEd credits at Cambrian College. These can be used in place of one of the three GenEd requirements in programs at Cambrian College.
- Students planning to attend any college or university may participate in ACT, however, the course credit is only available at Cambrian College.

How will ACT prepare students for postsecondary education?

- In this 8-week course, a course moderator supports students through independent learning and live, interactive online activities.
- Students are guided through a process to develop tools and skills matched to their learning strengths and weaknesses.
- Students also learn ways in which college and university learning is different from high school learning.
- By the end of the course students will have developed a personalized learning profile and transition plan.

Course requirements

- A computer, reliable Internet access, and the ability to view and participate in videoconferencing sessions.
- The course will run from July 4 to September 2, 2022, and will require approximately five hours of learning from students each week.
